Inside Info -

IN "Commencement Diary" we have tried to recapture for the alumnae who were here on May 30 and 31 and/or June 1 the spirit of reunion and graduation. For you who were not able to come, we have tried to tell you the weekend's story. To you who were here, may we say how glad we are that you came and how much we hope that you enjoyed yourselves and that you will come back soon. And to you who didn't make it: we missed you and hope that you will come next year.

TWO houses were very much in the news at Woman's College during Commencement . . . the Commencement House and the Alumnae House. An article about the Commencement House project and its "twenty-three designing women" is included in this issue of the ALUMNAE NEWS. Because the official source of information, decorator Reginald Styers, is in Brussels attending the World's Fair, the story about the redecoration and renovation of the Alumnae House will not appear until the October issue. Both stories are interesting and exciting; perhaps it is better that the interest and excitement be split.

JULIA'S and BARBARA'S columns are both missing from this issue. President Julia (Maulden) is at this moment of publication in England attending to some Girl Scout business. And about all that Executive Secretary Barbara (Parrish) knows at this moment is recorded in "Commencement Diary."

ALL of the members of the 1958 Commencement Committee and their contributions are mentioned in the story about Commencement, save TWO: hostess chairman Betty (Yost) Little '46 and publicity chairman Margaret (Johnson) Watson '48. Their work was important and well-done, too, and we could not let them not go unmentioned.

Published four times a year (October, January, April, July) by the Alumnae Association of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro. Admitted as second-class matter at the post office in Greensboro, N. C., June 29, 1912. Single copies, 50 cents.

The Cover

Backing-up the Class of 1925 as it met for its thirty-third reunion was Elizabeth Hathaway's "rendition" of a John Held, Jr., flapper. It and the balloons, streamers, and pennants represent the festive and nostalgic spirit for which the 1958 Commencement Committee strove.

11:00 a. m.

T all really began in the Cone Ballroom in Elliott Hall with the graduating exercises for 128 members of the One-Year Commercial Class. Garbed in grey caps and gowns and marching to "Pomp and Circumstance," the Commercials, led by their everlasting president, Barbara Barger of Charlotte, listened as Chancellor Gordon Blackwell expressed the hope that the college year had given them a spirit of service, an experience in responsible citizenship, an appreciation for high ethical values, for cultural things, and the attainment of technical proficiency for their vocation. "We must work continually at strengthening American democracy," he continued. "We must all do our bit to help in handling local community problems. Women no longer are passive by-standers in any of these matters. More and more they are assuming position of leadership. We believe that in the environment of a woman's college you have access to leadership positions and other experiences essential in the development of a practicing responsible citizenship."

8:00 p. m.

"Coffee (courtesy of the Fleetwood Coffee Company) and punch are served!" announced Marian (Adams) Smith '49, Alumnac Association Social Chairman.

That's Marian holding the coffee pot and flanked by her helpers, Janice (Hooke) Moore '44 on the left and Gladys (Sessoms) Elmore '43 on the right. The Alumnae House's faithful Arthur Lott is, as always, "backing them up." Juanita Stott '27 (far right) was one of several hundred alumnae who came in for refreshments during the evening.

While the coffee-and-punch-drinking was going on in the Virginia Dare Room, the Alumnae Board of Trustees met downstairs in the Pecky Cypress Room for their annual Commencement session to attend to the business of the Alumnae Association.

The Winnahs!

The newly-elected officers of the Association were invited to meet as non-voting members (until their formal election by the Association on Saturday morning) with the Board: first vice-president Marjorie Hood '26 and Board members Susan Borden '27, Carolyn (Jones) Maness '46, Martha (Moring) Lauten '47, and Mary Alice (Robertson) Poor '26.

Retiring first vice-president Judy Barrett "stood in" at the Board meeting for president Julia Maulden, whose presence in hometown Kannapolis on Friday night was necessitated by the high school graduation of her eldest son.

Outstandingly significant among the business which the Board transacted was the adoption of the following report by a special Board committee on an Alumnae Service Award:

Alumnae Service Award

The Alumnae Service Award is to be given to an alumna who by her unselfish and faithful service has made an outstanding contribution to the advancement of Woman's College.

This award shall be given in such years as a qualified nominee is presented.

Nomination may be presented by alumnae chapters, the General Alumnae Board, or individuals who are active members of the Alumnae Association.

The Alumnae Service Award committee, appointed by the president of the Alumnae Association, will receive nominations by December 1.

The committee will present the nominations and a brief summary of each nominee's service to Woman's College to the Alumnae Board at the Midwinter Meeting for final selection of the candidate.

The committee will prepare a final citation to be presented at the Commencement Meeting of the Alumnae Association.

The identity of the recipient will be kept secret until Commencement. The presentation of the award will be released to the newspaper at that time. The award winner will be featured in an article in the July issue of THE THE ALUMNAE NEWS.

8:30 a. m. More coffee in the Virginia Dare Room and continued registration.

10:00 a. m. More than 400 attended the Commencement meeting of the Alumnae Association in Elliott Hall's Cone Ballroom and saw and heard . . .

- . . . the voting-into-membership of the Class of 1958, represented at the meeting by their everlasting officers: president Katherine White (daughter of Rachel (Aycock) White '29) of Dunn, vice-president Sue Sigmon of Charlotte, secretary Meetta Carlton of Salisbury, treasurer Mary Jane Smiley, also of Salisbury, and alumnae representative Gloria Paschal of Greensboro.
- . . . the presentation of awards to five 1958 Class Agents whose groups were 100% in Alumnae Fund contributions.
- . . . Dr. John W. Kennedy, head of the economics department and chairman of the College committee on Special Education, who discussed the advances which have been made in the Special Education program since the alumnae adopted the resolution calling for action at last year's Commencement meeting.
- . . . Dr. Celeste Ulrich, ably assisted by Curry School students Dec Vaughan (daughter of Sara (Daniel) Vaughn '30) and Bill Adams (son of May (Lattimore) Adams '35C), who discussed the program in Outdoor Education in which the Curry students participated last summer.

- . . . buckets ("paint" this year because of the Alumnae House redecoration) awarded to the Class of 1948 for the largest Commencement pre-registration and the largest amount contributed by a reunioning class to the 1957 Alumnae Fund, to the Class of 1908 go the largest percentage of contributors among the reunioning groups of the '57 Fund, to the Class of 1953 for the largest number of contributors among the reunioning classes to the '57 Fund, and to the Class of 1957 in special recognition of its 360 members who became active alumnae during the annual senior drive.

12:00 noon The Parade down Walker Avenue to the Reunion Luncheon in Coleman Gymnasium.

Accessory-wise, Commencement . . . 1958 was "a sack year." Quite obvious on the arms of the paraders are the sacks which individual class luncheon chairmen decorated for their classmates and dispensed for paraphernalia-collecting during the weekend.

Detailed information about the Luncheon may be read in the reunioning class reports among this issue's NEWS NOTES, but these additional facts are important: Carol (Byrd) Sellars '51 was general luncheon chairman, but she did not fry all the chicken or bake all the cakes. The food was prepared by the lady-members of the Browns Summit Methodist Church, who did not sleep a wink Friday night . . . they cooked.

Dacia Lewis '47 was lunchcon program chairman, and she "engineered" the reappearance of puppets Adelaide Alumna and Alma Mater and the presentation of the 1958 Fashion Show.

Three of the models were photographed as they awaited their call to appear: Thettis (Smith) Hoffner '25 represented her class in her honest-to-goodness wedding dress; Mary Tennent '13 wore her graduation dress and carried her diploma tied with its original ribbon; and Olive (Chandley) Crawford '22 wore a creation which did not look too out-of-place on today's fashion scene.

Chancellor and Mrs. Blackwell were photographed as they chatted with an alumna at the Luncheon, but this being-on-hand and visiting was not confined to the Luncheon . . . they met and talked with alumnae from sun-up until dark.

4:00 p. m. Senior Class Day in the grove on Front Campus.

5:00 p. m. Alumnac were invited by the College faculty to a reception in the Alumnae House which honored the ten members of the faculty who retired at the end of the session.

The Alumnae Supper provided a continuing opportunity for visiting with faculty members and classmates.

The group, a part of which is pictured, enjoyed food prepared by the Elliott Hall Dining Room (Elizabeth (Ontlaw) Dinkler '51, director) and took home a plastic sack of favors, collected and packaged by Nancy (Bogart) Kabrich '51 and donated by these concerns; Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio, Ellis-Stone, Greensboro Ice and Coal Company, P. Lorillard Company, and the Southern Railway Company. Gladys Sessoms Elmore was Supper chairman, and Bennie (Lowe) Stedman '46, buffet-tables-decorations chairman.

The finale of the alumnae-planned-part of the day was the Supper program, written by Claire Hunt '57 and presented by her and six of her '57 classmates: Sadye Dunn, Ben Nita Black, Neill McLeod, Beryl Peters, Marty Yow, and Alice Spell. With Cone Ballroom lighted only by the projection of five slides of campus scenes, these words were read:

I never end . . . I began sometime ago . . . as you recall . . . in 1891 . . . You have probably noticed that my present life is different from my past . . . 1 did not grow overnight . . . nor in a decade . . . I have been perhaps a gradual thing . . . slow-moving, cautious, careful when traveling the streets of education . . . Some of you have criticized me . . . others have loved me unfailingly. But do you know . . . I have appreciated both you . . . my admirers . . and you . . . my scoffers . . . because you have shown me how to evaluate my good and bad points . . and not to be satisfied with myself at any particular moment . . . but to move . . . to push . . . surge from the plateaus of staleness . . . to climb the hills of progress.

I know your personalities have matured since last you were here . . . I like to think you have carried on principles that were crystallized when you were studying with me. Perhaps many of your college dreams of fame or fortune have not materialized but what are they but dreams . . . Life has not been a dream for you . . . rather, it has been a practical venture into the unknown . . . but you have used your head, your heart, your hand to become you . . . and I . . . have, too, become part of you . . . because of our efforts you and I are proud of each other . . . There is something I knew for sure . . . that you would find the setting out different from the coming back.

At first there is an air of excitement and anxious chatter . . . so much to see . . . so much to do . . . and so little time makes each moment precious . . I heard women's voices surge forth in the singing of songs . . . gay, happy, sentimental, unique songs . . . the kind you sang when you were students with me. And you have joined the spirit of reunion again or for the first time . . . A familiar face you see . . . a familiar landmark . . . and you know you have returned . . . You . . . the loyal . . . the outspoken . . . the let's give a few more dimes and dollars to this fund and that project; you . . . the renowned in your days with me who have gone into your communities with the same qualities of leadership you displayed on campus; you . . . the homemakers who are having those children and grandchildren you wanted; you . . . the seekers of more education who have received additional degrees with further years of study after your graduation here . . . How very unsurprised I am to see all of you . . . I felt sure you would return at reunion time to renew that which needs your attention . . .

But . . . Why wait a moment . . . Yes, you did come . . . yes, you on the front row . . . it is good to see you . . . But you know, I knew you would come . . . Now, what was your parting remark to me? Oh yes, "I've waited for this day for four years . . . Good-bye, Ivy Towered Walls and believe me . . . I wouldn't even send my dog here." Your daughter is doing quite well here. I see to that. Sometimes she should be spanked for slandering me as you no doubt realize you should have been. But this has happened so often that I can only laugh. Of course, the first few remarks directed toward me were rather alarming . . . but with age comes wisdom and understanding.

Your pride has brought you back to a reunion week-end . . . There are those good stable friendships which you felt the need of renewing just one more time . . . Perhaps this week-end has been a surprise for you, for you possibly have found those friends you thought you knew . . . changed people as they . . . likewise . . . have found you . . . And you can look back . . . recalling those paramount problems you solved in school, the bitter arguments, the splits in your class that were often created through petty misunderstandings . . . and you can chuckle a little, for you are now mature in your oneness. How disappointed I would have been had you not returned to see this . . . And you can see . . . those of you who are not recent graduates . . . that my appearance has changed considerably, too.

Why? Because of you . . . because of what I contributed in the past to you . . . and now it makes me proud to see your contribution to the world . . . We've set up quite a chain reaction . . . you and I . . . And because you have recognized me as a voice of education . . . you have given me the reputation of producing intelligent, responsible women . . . who are citizens in the home, the community, the schools, the office. You and I have had a share in becoming citizens of the world . . .

I have given you the opportunity for a formal and informal education . . . You have given me a great deal more . . . Or do you think you have? Of course . . . For I am considered a rarity among girls schools . . . I am nationally recognized as having an academically sound program. My administration and my faculty made that possible. Through your student government association, you learned the give and take of a democratic process. You became increasingly aware of equality and rights of an individual. You made this possible and you accepted . . . and you wanted to share with the world your knowledge of a democracy. I am proud of my past, I am strong in the present, I am hopeful for the future. You have done this. Because of you I am attracting a greater number of students. You have forced me to expand . . . and I know change is one step to climb in progress . . . Thus . . . progress. Look at my buildings and see that I should grow . . . must grow . . . and am growing . . . I am ever-mindful of my past history . . . but I have an alert eye to the future . . . Each of my buildings is the answer to a need . . . Due to my increasing student body . . . new buildings have been constructed to answer a need for more classrooms and living quarters.

But . . . although each building appears outwardly different from another . . . it is not . . . they are not . . . for the buildings are uniform in goals, plans, opportunities, and advantages . . . Each stands sturdy and silent . . . yet it becomes vibrant and ready to receive interested and alert students and professors. The students who enter are outwardly different but inwardly they share a common goal, a desire for similar opportunities, and a hope to prepare for future generations . . . All these dreams depend on what I mean to you . . . And what am I, the Woman's College, to you . . . the name . . . the seal . . . the school, you see . . . the people you have met here. The gav times and the sad moment and the professors who advised you . . . Raincoats on Tuesday and the inevitable rush to breakfast before one of those lines invaded the dining hall at five minutes 'til eight . . . Havoc really breaking forth before exam-time and after vacation . . . that slow walk back to the residence hall after a campus function . . . talking and thinking about the event you attended . . . a week-end midnight curfew . . . Gay hellos . . . sad good-byes . . . both influenced by the spirit of my surroundings . . . I provided the setting . . . you provided the emotion and somehow in this interaction spirit was born . . .

And . . . what is spirit? What is my spirit? Spirit is that intangible . . . a feeling that you and I have created . . . The remembrance of things past . . . Perhaps . . . It is your walking down College Avenue . . . or gaily talking to a friend you see often or seldom . . . or sitting under the trees for shade or comfort when spring is ripe . . . or visiting a professor for friendly advice . . . or going to a favorite campus spot to think, to study, to prepare, or being with those people and those books and those things you enjoy most.

Returning to the campus for a rennion renews your spirit, makes you recognize the ingredients your spirit feeds upon . . . makes you recognize you . . . the finished product. Memories are collected and relived because of this long-felt feeling of spirit you possess . . . A feeling which time nurtures rather than destroys. You have made me a composite of different ingredients or traits . . . Therefore, 1 am not one-sided . . . but a richer college by having known you . . . 1 offered my tradition to you . . . and you accepted . . . 1 offered study and you adhered . . . I offered my spirit and you experienced it . . . I offered you a framework . . . and you the individuals fitted into the pattern: making me whole, proud, strong.

I never end . . . You made me this way . . .

Dr. Duke McCall, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Kentucky, told the graduates in the Baccalaureate Sermon that new developments and concepts in the world of science call for new horizons of faith. New ideas about the universe face us and answers will have to be given new questions," he said.

At 5:50 it looked as if it would rain . . . at 6:10 a few drops fell . . . at 6:20 the skies opened up, and 440 graduates and nearly 4,000 on-lookers scurried from their out-door seats in front of the Library to the shelter of Aycock Auditorium.

There were 391 North Carolinians among the 440 who received degrees from President of the University of North Carolina William C. Friday. Of the total number, the degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred on 206; of Bachelor of Secretarial Administration, on 55; of Science in Home Economics, on 47; of Science in Physical Education, on 12; of Music, on 13; of Fine Arts, on 13; of Education, on 83. Three were awarded Master of Fine Arts degrees; two, Master of Science; and six, Master of Science in Home Economics.

State Treasurer Edwin Gill addressed the graduates as the representatives of the State of North Carolina; Chancellor Gordon Blackwell, the College; and Katherine White, the graduates themselves.

Upon an alumna, Margaret (Castex) Sturgis of the Class of 1905, was the only honorary degree conferred. In awarding the degree Chancellor Blackwell read:

MARGARET CASTEX STURGIS: eminent gynecologist, surgeon, teacher, author; a Tar Heel with roots that go deep into the life of Eastern Carolina; a student at Woman's College (1902-1905), a graduate from the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania (1915), a student in postgraduate study in Europe (1925); for many years Clinical Professor of Gynecology at the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania; later Professor of Gynecology at the same college, and at the time (1942-1946) the only woman with that rank in any Class-A medical college in the United States; Chief of Gynecology at Philadelphia General Hospital and Woman's Hospital of Philadelphia; author of numerous scientific articles, and contributor to a book on gynecology; researched in cancer; Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and member of many professional organizations; honorary member of the Woman's College Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa; pioneer woman in medicine, unwearied in your search for the secrets of your art, unflagging in your ministry of healing; a true daughter of Woman's College in your skilled and generous service to others.

By the vote of the Faculty of the Woman's College and that of the Trustees of the University of North Carolina and by reason of distinction in service to society, I confer upon you the degree of DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS with all its rights and privileges.

7:45 p. m.

Commencement was over . . . Within an hour and three-quarters the number of Woman's College alumnae had increased by 440.

A Letter

from Adelaide Van Noppen Howard '19

When the Chancellor of the Woman's College is unable to accept personally an invitation to represent the College at the installation of a president of another college, an alumna is asked to represent our institution. Chancellor Blackwell was unable to attend such a ceremony in April at the University of Alabama, and he asked Adelaide Van Noppen Howard to represent him and the College. Because of the sincerity and charm of her report of this occasion, it has been chosen for inclusion in THE ALUMNAE NEWS.

April 12, 1958

FEW weeks ago I got one of the biggest thrills of my life when a letter came from Chancellor Blackwell, asking me to represent Woman's College at the Inauguration of President Frank Anthony Rose at the University of Alabama on April 9. . . .

Through my faculty husband, I knew of elaborate plans which were being made for this, the first formal inauguration of a president of the University of Alabama in 121 years. I realized what a big responsibility was mine in representing Woman's College among all the institutions of higher learning in the country. My role seemed to be to look and act a part, in keeping with the best traditions of my Alma Mater. The College sent my cap and gown for the formal exercises. There was going to be an official luncheon, however, for the delegates and distinguished guests, where academic robes would be discarded and each person would try to look at his or her best. I chose a costume which I felt would be approved by the shades of Miss Boddie, Miss Mendenhall, and Miss Elliott, and then I was satisfied.

Wednesday dawned grey and chilly, with lowering clouds. The Weather Report said: "Increasing cloudiness, with rain in the afternoon." So the officials went ahead with plans for the inauguration to be in the stadium.

At 8:30 in the morning I registered and received instructions in the Library, and then went to the Home Economics Building for coffee with the other women guests. It was a delightful privilege to meet so many interesting and outstanding women—wives of college presidents, college deans, alumnae from famous, or little-known colleges, all over the United States. Many looked upon me with a new deference when they learned that I represented the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, and several said complimentary things from firsthand knowledge of our College.

1 put on my black gown and mortarboard, recalling, with a nostalgic twinge, the last time I had donned such attire—my Graduation in 1919. Around the Bell Tower that Marshals were assembling the Academic Procession, with the delegates' positions depending on the ages of the colleges, 1 was 212. My partner was a professor representing the University of Chicago. Behind us were the president of Scarritt College and the representative from the University of Oklahoma.

With heads held high, we marched across the campus and down the sidewalk between rows of friends and townsfolk. Always before, I had stood on the curb, wondering how the notables in the academic robes really felt. Now I knew.

Across the grassy carpet of the stadium we went, past the platform already filled with celebrities and banked with Easter lilies. The University Orchestra was playing, and the chorus, in tiers, was all ready to sing. We delegates filed in the first center section of seats. Behind us came the rows of faculty, student representatives and other participants. I was somewhat abashed to find my tassle was on the wrong side, but comforted when I noticed several on the platform had made the same mistake.

The exericse began with proper dignity, just at the close of "Alma Mater," drops became noticeable on the caps in front, and Dean Newman announced that the exercises would be adjourned to Foster Auditorium-clear across the campus. By that time it was raining hard, and our march became a flight. The more careful removed their hoods and velvet trimmings and covered them with their gowns; others just plodded along, their colorful regalias getting soaked. When we got into the auditorium, we removed as much of our dripping exteriors as was practical, hoping they would partially dry during the exercises. Everybody accepted it all in good spirits. The witty and stimulating speech of President Darden of the University of Virginia lifted our thoughts to higher things, and Dr. Rose's rather brief Inaugural Address filled us with pride in our handsome and promising young president.

The wives of the distinguished visitors were to have a special luncheon with Mrs. Rose presiding. We women delegates, however, were to be a conspicuous minority among the male honorees at the Official Luncheon. The visitors had left their "finery" in their cars, parked around the campus - ready for a quick change between the Inaugural Exercises and the Luncheon. Now it was pouring rain in torrents, and the gutters were swirling streams. There was nothing to do but run for the dining hall, which was nearer than the parking areas. I got a lucky ride with a friend, drove home, put on my hat, shoes, and gloves, and returned to the Luncheon. My pride turned to embarrassment, however, when I saw the condition of the visitors. Only three had on hats, their hair hung limp and bedraggled, suits were wrinkled and shoes muddy. Spirits were undampened, however, and the informality of it made for a freer fellowship. Across from me sat alumnae from Hollins, Bryn Mawr, Western College for Women, and Agnes Scott; nearby were "Wecky" Woolen from Chapel Hill, P. B. Raiford from North Carolina State, and Dr. Al Winn from Davidson. The food was delicious, and everybody thoroughly enjoyed the charming, but thought-provoking speech by President Dickey of the University of Kentucky.

Today I mailed back my cap and gown. The clock has struck, and Cinderella is back in the kitchen: but as long as I live 1 shall treasure the shining memory of representing my Alma Mater at President Rose's Inauguration.

Sara Louise (Andrewes) Rivers '36

"Mrs. Rivers' pupils remember her as a person who was interested in them, not as a class unit, but as individuals. She encourages each one to make the most of his potential."

"She is not content with giving the minimum of time and talent, but extends wherever and whenever needed all she has in time, effort and ability." "Mrs. Rivers is always one of the first to be put on any committee for extra work in school or district. Not only is she appointed, but if the need arises, she volunteers."

Florida's Teacher of the Year

THESE, and many more enthusistic endorsements from students, parents, coworkers, college professors, and civic organizations throughout Florida made Sara Lonise (Andrewes) Rivers top-placer in the search by the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs for the Teacher of the Year.

The objective of this annual award, honoring teachers who have done exceptional work, is to increase the prestige of the teaching profession by interesting young people in the profession of teaching as a career. Each woman's club district appoints an award committee, made-up of one representative each from local clubs, PTA's, Chamber of Commerce, civic organizations, and the local superintendent of schools. Nominees are selected on a basis of scholastic attainments, teaching experience, humanitarian attitude toward students, outstanding work beyond the call of duty, and interest in community, state, and national affairs.

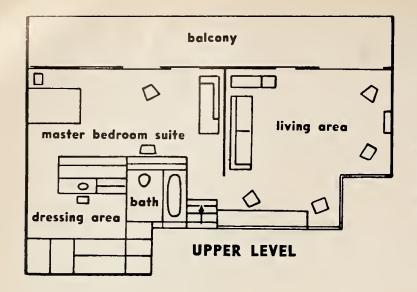

Sara Louise was selected last January by the Lake City, Florida (where she teaches), award committee which included representatives from the Chamber of Commerce, Ministerial Alliance, Girl Scouts, Parent-Teacher Association, and the County Board of Public Instruction. She competed with winners from other districts for the state award, which was made at the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs convention in St. Petersburg in April. Further competition is involved: three teachers will be selected from those submitted by the 48 states, District of Columbia, and Alaska, as the National Teacher of the Year.

A teacher in the Lake City schools for twenty-one years and the holder of a master of arts degree from the University of Florida. Sara Louise's subject choices are English and social studies. She has served on textbook commissions, school evaluation committees and panels. Aside from her classroom teaching, she does guidance work and counseling and is sponsor of graduation exercises, banquets, plays, the Thespian Society, and the school yearbook. By the way, an added surprise and honor was the dedication of this year's yearbook to her. Says Sara Louise: "The students impressed upon me the fact that this was all done long before this other (Teacher of the Year) came up."

A member of Delta Kappa Gamma, Phi Kappa Phi, and Sigma Tau Delta, Sara Louise reviews new textbooks for clearing house magazine. And when she is not reading, she does water color painting as a hobby. Husband David is part-owner of a Lake City department store, and son James is seven years old and a rising second grader.

I N her acceptance speech to the Federation Convention Sara Louise expressed the belief that a blunt but effective weapon that could be used to help reduce juvenile wavwardness today is an everyday policy of complete honesty-taught by example. In an interview following her speech she explained her theory: "When Johnny sees Dad watching the rear-view mirror for a patrolman while he's exceeding the speed limit, or Mary hears Mother glibly garnishing facts on the telephone, how can anyone blame children for putting a low price mark on truth, selfdiscipline, and regard for the law? . . . Today's teen-agers need ingredients administered in both home and school: (1) an example of honesty in small, everyday matters; and (2) large doses of genuine interest in their activities and ambitions, rather than a hurried and preoccupied tolerance."

And the interview continued: "Mrs. Rivers practices what she preaches."

Much of the publicity material about the Commencement House was dispensed by the Duke Power Company of Greensboro. This ALUMNAE NEWS article is a composite of Duke Power's brochure and press releases. We are grateful for their assistance.

COMMENCEMENT HOUSE

2207 North Elm Street

Greensboro, North Carolina . . . is the product of twenty-three students of interior design and housing at the Woman's College. The program was created to demonstrate the actual planning, design, construction, and furnishing a home. It is a unique project . . . an educational first! It brings the practicing professional into the classroom and allows the student to work with experts in many fields. Through such experiences the student gains a deeper appreciation for architecture and a better understanding of design techniques. She becomes acquainted with the field of home planning and building and is therefore a more capable and well informed client. Specifically, the home economics student gains practical experience as a consumer and the art student becomes a designer. She comes in contact with different manufacturers, numerous variations of one product, financial problems, price ranges, building codes, safety requirements, etc. She learns what is available to her and where to look for it. She develops a greater sensitivity toward aesthetic principles, and she is able to coordinate many fields of knowledge through practical application.

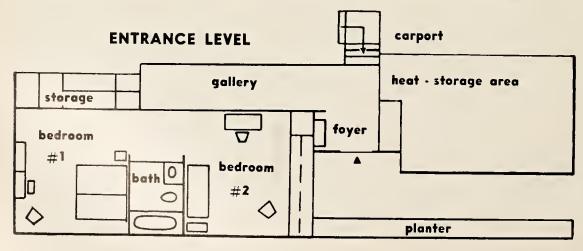

The Commencement House program was co-sponsored by the College art department of which Mr. Gregory D. Ivy is head; Mr. Edward Loewenstein, a lecturer in the art department and a Greensboro architect; and Mr. Eugene Gulledge, president of the Greensboro Builders Association and the Superior Construction Company. The class in Architectural Design began the project in September. Committees within the class were formed, each to tackle the problems of design, floor planning, wiring, plumbing, decorating, etc. Two sets of restrictions were placed on the students. One, by Mr. Loewenstein, the instructor, concerned such things as the family income, number of people to live in the house, and the like. The other, imposed by Mr. Gulledge, the builder, and the more difficult of the two, stipulated that the students must design a house which he could sell in Greensboro. While the house should contain new and pioneering ideas of layout and design, it should not be so radical as to make it unmarketable.

The Reality

The house, which was formally opened on May 29 by Mrs. Luther H. Hodges (Martha Blakeney '18), wife of the Governor of North Carolina, is a tri-level structure of cypress and used brick. In it are contained approximately 2350 square feet of enclosed living area, plus a 484 square feet double carport and 248 square feet storage and heating room, balcony and terrace.

Each level is an activity center, zoned to accommodate specific family needs. No room is a traffic lane. Both guest and family entrances are on the north, and the gallery and stairs channel the traffic to the desired level. On the lower level, traffic paths by-pass the dining room furnishings and kitchen work areas, yet are incorporated into these rooms. All bedrooms and baths are designed for complete privacy and control. The master bedroom suite opens onto the balcony, and provides specific sleeping and dressing areas which may be separated from the informal study. The children's bedrooms (#I and #2) and bath can be separated from the other levels, yet are accessible from the master bedroom for parental supervision. In addition to the quiet areas for sleeping and study, there are accommodations for group gatherings both indoors and outside that lend themselves to different modes of entertaining. The living room and balcony encourage a more formal style, while the family room and terrace (with outdoor fireplace and grill) provide for family enjoyment and informal gatherings. Lighting provisions and television connections on the balcony and terrace made outside living more enjoyable. Toilet facilities are provided on each level and are sound controlled from the group areas.

Storage accommodations are available at the necessary locations and are properly sized for complete utilization of space. A choice of dining facilities is provided. Formal meals may be enjoyed in the mood-setting dining room. Lighting is designed to create variety in atmosphere by providing several colors of light and by the use of dimmers which control intensity of light. Snacks and informal meals may be served on the terrace and at the eating bar in the family room. Effort has been made to save time and energy in housekeeping. A laundry chute, which is accessible from the two top floors, brings clothes to the sorting area beside the washer. Cleaning closets are provided on lower and entrance levels to allow storage of cleaning equipment at the point of use. Hard floor coverings, counter tops, and other finishing materials have been picked with thought as to ease of cleaning and upkeep. The kitchen triangle saves time and steps. In the kitchen are included an electric dishwasher, clothes washer, dryer, disposal unit, and refrigerator. The areas of expensive construction in the house are compact, while the inexpensive head and storage area and carport are large and 100my and provide exciting possibilities that might include a playroom, bedrooms, or an upper terrace.

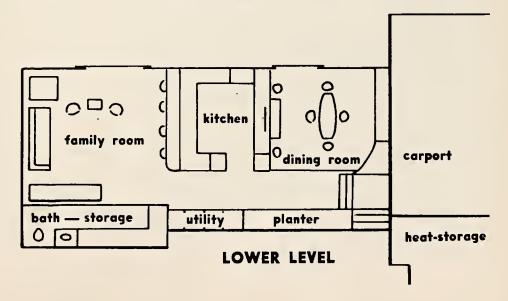

Through the use of exposed brick, wood and glass, the interior design is integrated with the structural elements and exterior finishes. The free, spacious atmosphere is increased by a basic soft grey-green throughout the house. Accent colors lend vitality and interest, as do accessories and textures . . . grass cloth, fabrics, wood, glass, plastic, cement, brick, etc.

The interiors are planned to create the largest space possible within the budget and to take care of living requirements with a minimum of visible dividers. Family needs for privacy are handled without the loss of open areas required for general living purposes and entertainment. A parental retreat is provided in the study area of the master bedroom, and the children's wing may be completely closed off. Glass walls in the master bedroom and living room overlook the garden and have a balcony as an important feature. The dining and family areas also have glass walls that merge these indoors living spaces.

Furnishings are keyed to the basic simplicity expressed in the structure of the house itself and are casual in both selection and arrangement.

The Future

The twenty-three designing women truly waged a successful battle with the realities of house construction. And now that they and the College have made educational history, plans are already underway for similar projects. One thing about the future is certain . . . more time will be allowed for the construction venture. Ten weeks before the formal opening of the Commencement House, the lot on which it stands was vacant.

Chapter-ly Speaking

AST issue's Coming Attractions among chapters have come and gone and have left the most active record of spring-of-the-vear chapter activity in recent years.

Before we turn to spring-ier things, however, there is a bit of winter news from the Atlanta, Georgia, Chapter which need to be passed on. At a January 15th meeting, the group decided to sponsor a dessert bridge and raffle to raise money for their Eunice Kirkpatrick Rankin Scholarship Fund, and during February the affair "came-off." Bootsie (Webb) Smith '47 and Ginny (Edwards) Campbell '44 were co-sponsors of the benefit event which netted $103.60 for the scholarship fund.

Betty Lou (Nance) Smith '48 was elected chairman of the High Point-Jamestown Chapter by the sixty-one alumnae who attended the April 10th "chapter revival meeting." Louise (Bell) Moffitt '36 and Nancy Sechrest '47 were elected to work with Betty Lou as vice-chairman and secretary-treasurer, respectively. Chancellor Gordon Blackwell and Alumnae Secretary Barbara Parrish met with the group in the Friends Meeting House in High Point. May (Lovelace) Tomlinson '07, who instigated the meeting, presided. High Point members of the Guilford County General Assembly delegation O. Arthur Kirkman and Ed Kemp, newspaper editor Holt McPherson, and UNC trustee Henry Foscue met with the group.

Sadye Dunn, the College's field representative, represented the College and the Alumnae Association at a joint meeting of alumnae in Martin and Washington counties at the Town and Country Restaurant in Williamston on April 16. Meeting-arrangers were Sue Underhill '30, chairman of the Washington County Chapter, and Iris (Nelson) Cooke '32.

After the general meeting the Martin alumnae organized themselves a chapter and elected Ellen (Taylor) Thigpen '44 as their first chairman; Mary Auna (Taylor) Lilley '51, vice-chairman; and Mary Ola (Lilley) Peele '52, sccretary-treasurer.

Sadye brought back the good news that Beaufort County alumnae are planning a chapter organization. Sarah (Jackson) Potter '51, who lives in Belhaven, is spear-heading this formation. You alumnae in Beaufort County, get in touch with her NOW.

Juanita (McDougald) Melchoir '17 and Mary (Pou) Parker '44 were elected chairman and sccretary, respectively. of the Up-State New York Chapter at an organizational meeting in Syracuse on April 19th. The fifteen "organizers" who met were enthusiastic and unanimous in their elections and in their desire to meet regularly twice a year. Not only was the group new, their program was also new. They were the first chapter to preview the news, and as yet uncompleted Golden-Chainsponsored film about the College. Before adjournment the next meeting date and place were decided upon: the date will be Founder's Day Eve (October 4th), and the place, Elizabeth (Langford) Davenport's home in Binghamton, New York.

Eleanor Rigney '50, who reported the proceedings of the meeting, passed along the additional good news that our Buffalo (NY) alumuae are interested in an affiliate chapter. The Alumnae Office is corresponding with Laura (Whisnant) VanNortwick '43x about that good idea.

The presentation of the Anna Meade Williams Scholarship was made to Kathleen Beakley of Asheville, who will be a freshman at the College in the fall, at the annual meeting of the Buncombe County Chapter on April 19th. Sadye Dunn spoke to the group which assembled for lunch at Treadway Manor in Asheville and which included alumnae from the entire western section of the State. Officer-election-time brought forth these results: Margaret (Gravatt) Harris '45, chairman; Margaret (Holland) Metealf '30, vice-chairman; and Ruth Whitson '46x, secretrary-treasurer.

Chancellor Blackwell, who spoke to the Columbia, South Carolina, Chapter on April 24th, had some men in his audience for a change. The alumnae members invited their husbands to come and meet "their" new chancellor and hear about what is going on at their alma mater. The meeting, a dinner one, was held in Russell House, the University of South Carolina's student union.

Lucile (Sharpe) Long '32 was elected to head the work of the chapter for next year. Working with her will be vice-chairman Eunice (Williams) Whiehard '46x, secretary Dorothy (Cowdery) Terrell '50x, treasurer Kathryn (Oliver) Floyd '53, publicity chairman Frances (Grantham) King '35, and waysand-means co-chairmen Connie (Edwards) Smith and Marian (Young) McCullers, both '48ers.

Rowan County girls enrolled at the College during the just-ended session and those expecting to enter as freshmen in the fall were entertained by the Rowan County Chapter on Saturday afternoon, April 26. Sadye Dunn was invited by the chapter chairman, Ruby (Lylerly) Morris '38C, to come with the students.

Wake County alumnae, each of whom was invited to bring a guest, learned about the North Carolina In-School Television program at the chapter meeting on April 29th at the Fairmont Methodist Church in Raleigh. A panel, composed of Mr. Charles W. Phillips, who is on leave from the College to direct the In-School Television program, Dr. Vester Mulholland of the State Department of Public Instruction, and Mrs. Mitchell Kirkland, who used television in her history classes at the Cary High School, discussed the use which is being made of television in the secondary schools of the State.

Undine (Nye) LeGrande '42 and Mary Lib (Purvis) Finlator '39 will continue as chairman and treasurer, respectively, of the group for another year. New officers elected to serve with them were Doris (Clark) Walker '43, first vice-chairman; Lois Frazier '42, second vice-chairman; and Elizabeth (Jones) Cease '47, secretary.

When Sadye Dunn returned from her March 3rd meeting with the alumnae in Richmond County, she reported that the group seemed to be chapter-minded. She was right . . . on April 29th eleven folks met in the Rockingham Community Center and organized the first Richmond County Chapter. Mary (Idol) Breeze '53, temporary chairman (later to be elected permanent secretary), presided until Rachael (Draughon) Shores '39 was elected chairman. Polly McDonald '55 was elected vice-chairman, and Barbara Sanderford '55, Eunice (Gathings) McLester '33x, and Everette (Sanderford) Marley '52 were elected chairmen of the publicity, social, and telephone committees, respectively. Before the adjournment of this initial meeting, plans were made for a coke party for new and returning students on August 12th and for a dinner meeting of the chapter in October. Welcome a-board, Richmond alumnae . . . we're mighty proud of you!

Fifteen alumnae and one visitor attended the April 29th meeting of the Jacksonville, Florida, Chapter. The group transacted two important matters of business: a contribution to the College General Scholarship Fund was voted, and new officers were elected. Libby Wade O'Brien '42 will serve as chairman for the next two years, and serving with her will be Carolyn (Wheatley) Davidson '42, vice-chairman; Winifred (Langley) Griffin '43, secretary; and Marjorie (Wyatt) Howie '46, treasurer.

Announcement was made by chairman Janice (Hooke) Moore '44 at the April 29th meeting of the Grenesboro Chapter Council that two scholarships of $225 each will be awarded by the chapter for next year's college session. That's a total of $450, and a balance of $367-plus remains in the chapter treasury. The success of last fall's Kitchen Tour made all of this high financing possible.

The Nominating Committee presented its slate at the meeting and announced that balloting for the chapter's officers would be by mail . . . a first such move by the group. The more than 200 ballots returned elected Gladys (Sessoms) Elmore '43, chairman; Jane (Davis) Lambert '49, vice-chairman; Betty (Griesinger) Sink '36, secretary; and Ada Jane Moore '51, treasurer.

Chancellor Blackwell and Barbara Parrish were on-hand to express thanks to the retiring officers and congratulations to the new ones of the Forsyth County Chapter. The group which assembled for dinner at the YWCA on April 30th, elected Helen (Daughtry) Duke '47 as their chairman, and Marylynn (Roberson) Coghill '51, Lula Mae (Simpson) Tuttle '28, Janet Jones, and Mary Lib (Reavis) Lonnsbury '47 as vice-chairman, secretary, treasurer, and historian, respectively, to work with her.

The "temporary" part of chairman Sylvia (Crocker) Weeks' title, which she had borne in the Nash-Edgecombe Chapter since Sadye Dunn's meeting with the group during the winter, was replaced by "permanent" at a meeting of some fifty-five alumnae on May 10th in Rocky Mount. And Margaret (Griffin) Evans '46 was elected to serve with her as chapter secretary. Dean of Students Katherine Taylor, as guest speaker, brought into focus the history of the College as depicted on slides and the life and activity of the institution today. Anne (Fulton) Carter, resident counselor at the College, and Barbara Parrish also attended the luncheon meeting. A show of fashions worn by college students in by-gone days and modeled by alumnae, directed by Charlotte (Wilkinson) Toler '32, preceded Miss Taylor's talk.

Special guests for the occasion were the high school seniors from the two counties who will enter the freshman class in the fall and their mothers.

On Mother's Day afternoon (May 11th) the members of the Executive Board of the Wake County Chapter were "at home" in the State College Union in Raleigh to the high school girls in their county who are planning to come to the College next session. Sadye Dunn was in attendance to assist with the greeting and to answer the questions of the high-schoolers.

During the first week in June, just after the currently enrolled students got home for their summer vacation, the Washington County Chapter invited them and the recently-graduated-from-high-school-girls who will come to the College next year to a tea . . . a sort of "glad you are at OUR college and glad you're going there" party.

And Sue Underhill has written about another project which began on June 3 and which will continue three additional times during the month: a chapter-sponsored series of discussion on art by Lucinda Lanning '56. A wonderful idea on which to close "Chapter-ly Speaking" until October!

News and Reunion Notes '07 NINE members of the Class of

TWENTY members of the Old Guard registered for commencement, and many gathered with other alumnae in the Virginia Dare Room on Friday night, May 30, for punch and good fellowship.

On Saturday, May 31, after the Alumnae Meeting, and a delightful lunch served in the gymnasium, we met as a group and were welcomed by Miriam MacFadyen '00, President of the Old Guard, who introduced Dr. Victor Cutter, head of the Biology Depart-

Dr. Cutter made a most interesting and informative talk, explaining how Woman's College is trying to meet the steadily increasing demand made by schools, hospitals, and doctors, for women trained in science. Following Dr. Cutter's talk, the President called upon members of those classes present to tell of their activities. Although the Old Guard is composed of alumnae who have been away from the college fifty years or more, most are still active in home or public affairs.

Josie (Doub) Bennett '06, has been especially active, having given most of her time the past year to the Anti-Litter Campaign. She is now a director of the newly organized, "Keep North Carolina Clean Committee."

Mittie (Lewis) Barrier '00 told of her recent visit to England, Ireland and Scotland with her daughter. She also reported to us of the determined fight that Annie (Kizer) Bost '03 is making, to overcome an illness to which a less-spirited person would give in. We are very proud of Annie, and wish her a complete recovery.

Not all of our members who came to commencement were able to stay the entire time, therefore some of those who were here but are not to be found in our group photograph. Those who registered but were not present for the picture were: Maude C. (Miller) Birdsall '05, Ruth Fitzgerald '05, Virginia (Brown) Douglas '02, Blanche (Harper) Moseley 1896, and Nettie (Parker)

Our thanks are extended to Ione Grogan, our College Sponsor, and to Miss Ellen Penn for the many ways in which they contributed to our pleasure and comfort; to Mary Wills McCulloch and her committee for their attractive decoration of our luncheon table; and especially to Miriam MacFadyen for her gracious efforts to see that we all had a happy reunion.

1907 met at Commencement in a Special Reunion, their main purpose being to honor May (Lovelace) Tomlinson for her outstanding service to the Alumnae Association and to the College. The meeting immediately following the Alumnac Luncheon took the form of a "This Is Your Life" program, and we were told of her early life and reminded of many of the services she had rendered since her graduation.

Those present at this class meeting were Clare (Case) Ingram and Mary (Reid) Idol of High Point, Eula May Blue and Mattie Kate Shaw of Carthage, Grace Gill of Louisburg, Winnie Harper and Mary Expm of Snow Hill, Lulie Whitaker of Winston-Salem, and May Tomlinson. By special invitation, and May Tomlinson. By special invitation. tation May's daughter, Sara, and Miss Veraldol, a special friend, were present. Of the forty-six who graduated with the Class of 1907, twelve have passed on. Of the living, twelve have never married.

This was a most enjoyable Reunion, and we just wished that every one of our classmates could have been present.

> Mary Exum Everlasting President

Next reunion in 1959 SEVENTEEN members of the class of 1908 met in the Coleman Gymnasium at noon on May 31, 1958, for a happy 50th reunion. After a delicious luncheon served to us in the large room, as guests of the Alumnae Association of the College, and a unique, interesting fashion show portraying old-fashioned graduation dresses, and sport clothes, from 1900 to 1958, we had our class meeting in the Coleman Room of the gym.

Nettie (Brogden) Herring, Everlasting President, greeted us, and asked for a roll call by Edna Forney, Everlasting Secretary. As each name was called, we discussed the latest news of that classmate. Three members had had exceptional honors bestowed upon them since our last reunion: Nettie Brogden Herring was elected State President of Delta Kappa Gamma for the two-year period 1957-59; Elizabeth Hyman was elected the "Outstanding Teacher of the Year (1957)," and has been presented with a Paul Revere silver bowl and an Oscar from the 15th district of the Woman's Club; and Frances Lacy was honored by the City School System in Raleigh, N. C.—a new High School was named the Frances Lacy High

Our 1908 luncheon table in the gym was beautifully decorated with lavendar and white satin bands and white balloons, by Martha (Petty) Hannah and Mary Fitzgerald. Our deep appreciation goes to them. Our correspondence committee, composed of Nettie Brogden Herring, Edna Forney, and Rena (Lassiter) Joyner, tried to get in touch with every living member of our class. We noted with sorrow the death of Dora (Snipes) Mozingo on July 27, 1953.

Two who attended our 50th reunion were not present at picture-taking time: Annie May Hunter and Remma (Gibbs) McDaniel.

Next reunion in 1963

THIRTEEN members of the Class of 1913 returned to the campus of Woman's College on Alumnae Day to celebrate their forty-fifth reunion.

Most of the members arrived Friday evening and gathered at Alumnae House. During a coffee hour they enjoyed exchanging greetings and "catching up" on the happenings of past years.

At the Alumnae Meeting Saturday morning the group sat together and were introduced to the assembled alumnae by the president, Julia (Watson) Maulden.

In Coleman Gymnasium where the buffet luncheon was served, the 1913 "girls" were seated at a table especially appointed for the occasion. It was centered with an arrangement of fern and individual corsages of white carnations, the class flower, tied with blue, the class color. These were later worn by the members. The wall back of the table was lined with fashion sheets, depicting the styles

IN recognition and appreciation of her work in education in Raleigh, a high school in that city has been named for Frances Lacy '08. and prices, taken from the Ladies' Home Journals of 1913.

The theme of Alumnae Day was the "sack". Each Thirteener was given a shopping sack with the numerals 1913 and varied original drawings of styles of the era.

In the fashion show following the luncheon, Mary Tennent, a member of our class, modeled her own graduation dress and carried her diploma tied with the original bow of ribbon.

Special credit and thanks for the success of the reunion are due Verta (Idol) Coe, Elizabeth "Piggie" (Pollard) Jerome, and Mame (Boren) Spence.

Immediately following the luncheon the group had a class meeting with Verta Coe, everlasting president, presiding. She gave information and greetings from messages she had received from the classmates who were unable to attend the reunion.

The 1913 "girls" were enthusiastic in making plans for their return to the College in 1963 to celebrate their fiftieth reunion.

Next reunion in 1963

IF the class of '22 had been judged by the amount of chatter and fun on May 31, no one would have thought that the years had decreased our number. As a matter of fact we were only ten strong, but we felt really collegiate again with the attractive decorations that Sally (Tucker) Mumford and Ethel (Kearns) Hogshead had arranged for us.

After the delicious lunch and reviewing the fashions current "in our day," we were invited to Sally Mumford's new home for more "gab and gobble." Later in the afternoon we visited "Commencement House," the Greensboro residence designed and decorated by a class of twenty-three W. C. students in interior design.

The ten '22's who were present were Clara (Brawley) Latham, Agnes (Cannady) Cashwell, Olive (Chandley) Crawford, Ethel (Kearns) Hogshead, Elizabeth (Lindsay) Shaw, Sallie (Tucker) Mınmford, Mary York, Helen Dunn (Creasy) Hunter, Elizabeth (Stanford) Winn, and Ruby (Hodgin) Parnell, who came the greatest distance to join the fun.

When we meet again, we hope our number will have tribbled instead of dwindled.

Next reunion in 1963

SEVENTEEN members of the Class of 1924 pre-registered for their reunion on May 31: Mary (Brannock) Blanch, Ethel (Royal) Kesler, Lois (Barnette) Hunter, Evelyn (Mendenhall) Thompson, Faith (Johnson) Bunn, Inez (Crowder) Teague, Elizabeth Simkins, Elizabeth (Naylor) Valentine, Juanita Matthews, Elizabeth (Hunt) Adkins, Josephine (Robertson) Smith, Sarah (Hamilton) Matheson, Louisa (Sherwood) Homewood, Nell (Stewart) Nichols, Julia (Ross) Lambert, Blossom (Hudnell) Thomas, Sarah Wall (Griggs) Oden.

Arrangements for the reunion luncheon at noon in Coleman Gymnasium had been made by Louisa (Sherwood) Homewood. And Ethel (Royal) Kesler, the class' everlasting president, was on hand to preside at the meeting which followed the luncheon.

Thirty-third rennion: Class of 1925

THE twenty-two members of the Class of 1923 having their 35th reunion talked of the changes in the buildings and campus more than the changes in appearances of the members. How good it was to see every one and hear what each family was doing! Kathleen (Pettit) Hawkins, in charge of the luncheon, had an attractive little red school house for the centerpiece. After the luncheon, Virginia (Terrell) Lathrop called for a class meeting. Here we learned of the trips, the work and the books of the members. Mary Sue (Beam) Fonville has written "A Backward Look with a Forward Purpose," a history of the 30-year-old N. C. Council for Social Studies. Julia (Montgomery) Street, whose first book "Fiddler's Fancy" won the A. A. U. W. award of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Society in 1956, has a second book "Nocassin Tracks" due this year. Julia's books are for young readers. Our President Virginia Lathrop brought us up to date on the affairs of the College and inspired each of us to be a better Alumna by keeping in touch with the College and by being willing to "carry on" when we are needed.

He has been in Greensboro since December. He is retired from the banking business in which he was an official. They expect to live at 210 Granville Road. Greensboro, until the end of the year when they will go to Australia.

Anne McDougald Hocutt, daughter of Goldie (Harris) Hocutt of Raleigh, is one of twenty-five North Carolina high school seniors to receive a Hankins scholarship to Wake Forest College for the coming school year. The scholarships range in value from $400 to $1,000 for each school year and will be renewed each year if the holder maintains a superior scholastic standing. Anne is parliamentarian of the Future Homemakers of America and song leader for the future Teachers of America at Needham Broughton School.

Next reunion in 1962

Elizabeth Hathaway was the official luncheon decorator; Carolyn McNairy, the official class "greeter"; Thettis (Hoffner) Smith, the official fashion-show model; and Mozelle (Jackson) Underwood, the official fashion-show-pianist . . . all for the Class of 1925 and its 33rd reunion. Three members of the faculty, Miss Magnhilde Gullander and Drs. Malcolm Hooke and Leonard Hurley, joined the group for lunch. Elizabeth (Duffy) Bridgers, everlasting president of the class, presided at a meeting which followed the luncheon.

BECAUSE of her outstanding service to the community during 1957, Helen (Lichtenfels) Cumpert '33 was named the 1958 winner of the annual Asheville B'nai B'rith service award. MOST people think twice before becoming a club president once, but Roslyn (Southerland) Harris '30 has been serving as the head of two Winston-Salem organizations at the same time: regent of the General Joseph Winton Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. In a Twin City Sentinel article about Roslyn's service, a staff reporter wrote: "The job of working with 230 dedicated members of these groups is, to say the least, a herculean task. Mrs. Harris, a gracious lady of many talents, does all this with seeming ease."

THIS was an eventful year for the Class of 1938, as it celebrated its twentieth reunion. A number of us were fortunate in being able to return to the College for Commencement week-end; those of our classmates who could not be there in person were with us in spirit and added to our enjoyment of the oceasion.

Saturday was the big day for alumnae with the meeting of the Alumnae Association in the morning at Elliott Hall; the reunion luncheons and meetings in Coleman Gymnasium; the reception for retiring faculty members in the afternoon at the Alumnae House; the alumnae supper in Elliott Hall; and the concert in Aycock Auditorium. "38'ers" who stayed over the week-end were assigned to Cotten Dormitory and had meals in the College dining halls just like old times. What a pleasure it was to be in such a familiar place again and to see so many familiar people, both faculty and alumnae!

The following people signed the register at the 1938 luncheon on Saturday, for which Ruth (Whalin) Cooke had made gala prepa-

Elizabeth (Dotger) Murray of Greensboro was unable to attend the reunion festivities because of a bereavement in her family, but she came to the Gym for a few minutes to greet old friends.

After the luncheon and program, reunion classes adjourned to private rooms and held their own special meetings. Lucy presided in her usual poised and easy manner and held just the kind of informal, interesting meeting which we all wanted to have. She read letters from people who had been unable to come; gave everyone a chance to tell about their experiences of the past twenty years; and called on Miss Ingraham to give us the College news.

This was a most successful reunion which makes all of us look forward with pleasure to the next time. Let's plan to get together in Greensboro in 1963 for our twenty-fifth reunion!

WE swarmed over the campus like a hive of bees. There were 125 of us back to celebrate our 10th. We came from all over North and South Carolina, New York, Florida, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Connecticut, to mention only a few states represented. Jamison Hall was alive with screams and streams as we greeted those coming in with baggage and roommate. In the wee small hours of Saturday A. M. the pandemonium died down, (it never ceased), and sleep was with us. Bright-eyed, but with sun-glasses, we went to breakfast Saturday. Fully expecting to read a menu featuring a specialty of the house of 10 years ago and more: HC eggs, GG plums, TOM, juice, etc., we were disappointed to find French toast. But the Friday dinner the night before passed our taste-test with flying colors: they're using the same lenion pie recipe of old!!

The coffee hour in the Alumnae House on Friday night from 8 to 10 was attended by most of those arriving on Friday afternoon and evening. It was grand to see old friends and especially comical to watch expressions of those looking for a particular face, seeing it, screaming to it, embracing it, and saying, "You haven't changed a bit!!" When ten o'clock came, we had to be asked to leave the House. Streams of us headed for Jamison to continue our con-flabs. And continue we did. Pajama-ed and toothbrushed we headed for the communal "johns" in the small hours and with reluctance we turned out the lights with happy hearts and anticipation for the day to come. By ten o'clock Saturday morning everyone had headed for the Alumnae House to greet more '48ers and for Elliott Hall to attend the General Alumnae meeting. This meeting brought the class of '48, among other things, two honors (and please bear in mind that our budget can't stand silver loving cups, fancy trophies, etc.): we won the largest attendance bucket, and the largest amount contributed to the 1957 Alumnae Fund bucket. Usually galvanized buckets are given, but since this was the year of the big "face-lifting" in the Alumnae House, paint buckets were awarded. So, to the class of 1948 went two paint buckets.

After the general meeting we went to the Gym where a picnic lunch awaited us. We sat with our respective classes. The '48 niche was decorated with our old class jackets, a black and white jacket-shaped cake (which was taken back to Jamison Hall for mid-night snacking on Saturday night), and since this is the year of the "Sack"—our clever luncheon committee had whipped np sacks with black and white designs and lavender and white ribbons on the handles. Very handy these proved to be, for as the weekend wore on and we collected more and more things, into the sack they were dumped. My shoes fit right into mine!

After lunch we had a class meeting and sang our class song—led by the Rabey twins, cheerleaders. Everlasting President Betsy Bulloek Strandberg presided. It was at this time that we heard from those who weren't present for the weekend. Amazing how few classmates' whereabouts are unknown. Genial, lovable, Dr. Edna Arundel, our class chairman, had a few words for us, and about 2:30 in the afternoon we adjourned. It was at this time that parts of the campus were toured by those who could stay longer and attend the 5:00 tea for retiring faculty members and the 6:00 dinner in Elliott Hall.

Everyone was pleased with the material progress carried out on campus in our ten year absence, and many were heard to comment, "I believe I want my daughter to attend W. C." So far, my personal contribution will have to be date-material for the freshman class of 1970!

The new decor in the Alumnae House is lovely, and the new-to-us dorms and buildings, etc., are all we expected and more.

Me? I left the campus to go vote in the Democratic primary, brought my roommate home with me to spend the rest of the weekend and we talked until 2 A.M. the next morning. Was the week end fun? You bet it was!! See you in '63!

FIVE years ago, swathed from head to toe in black caps and gowns, we were sweltering in front of Aycock, singing "Bye Bye Blackbird" with great vigor, trying to look very much the part of the confident Woman's College graduate, though our inside mechanisms were doing all sorts of wierd gymnastics at the thought of Leaving It All Behind and Going Into the Cold-graphy and the Cold-graphy of the Cold-grap cruelworld! We joyously shouted "What is the best class at W. C.?", immodestly named ourselves as best qualified for the title, and gaped at the visiting alumnae, who in hats (of all things!) and matronly-looking clothes (we thought) looked ancient and doddering.

And we didn't believe it when Lydia wrote this spring that it was time for our Fifth Reunion; then we stopped a minute and did a box score on jobs and children and realized she was right. Hearts brimming with nostal-gia, we packed our best clothes (including hats-which goes to show how conventional you can get in the Outside World - and excluding class jackets, which not even a rag collector would accept now) and headed for our Intellectual Homeland. How many of us of interiectual Flometand. How many of us popped on and off campus during the May 30-June 1 period is hard to say; there were informal reunion meetings held every time two '53ers spied one another on campus (Why, you haven't changed a bit!"), but the official reunion occurred Saturday afternoon in Coleman Gymnasium. We consumed vast quantities of fried chicken and home baled quantities of fried chicken and home-baked cakes, but the basket lunch might just as well have consisted of crackers and water for all the attention it got once the clan began swapping sad stories of employment and unemployment, exhibiting baby pictures, and comparing notes on employers and wedding trips and pregnancies and new home-towns. With hearts and stomachs equally full we watched a most entertaining puppet show on the return of the alumnae, and a fashion show featuring campus styles from the elegant days of the Old Guard until today.

Adjourning to the student lounge for a class meeting, we were graciously welcomed by Everlasting President Lydia Moody, who compared us to rare wines—"You improve so with age!"—and presided over this, our first official gathering since 1954. After each of the 50-odd class members present gave a print randown on her adventures and misbrief rundown on her adventures and mis-adventures of these past years, we did exactly what Lydia threatened we'd do in her letter last spring—we talked about the rest of you, last spring—we talked about the rest of you, trying to catch up on everybody at once! Some of those present had migrated as deeply into Dixie as Alabama; others had ventured as far into Yankeeland as upstate New York. Not a few had helped husbands through college, and several had "seen the world," either on private or commercial tours, as wives of servicemen, or right in the line of duty, as in the case of Trilby Boerner, who claims to have lived a year in combat who claims to have lived a year in combat boots while with the Red Cross in Korea. Two children seems to be the average for the class at the moment, with several mothers-of-three and even two four-time mothers (looking younger than any of the rest!) pres-

Main topic of business was the possibility of an annual newsletter for '53'ers, to fill in the non-reunioning years. Main thesis of our discussions—how short, yet how unbelievably full and rich the intervening five years have been. Main resolution—to be sure to make it for the tenth and to encourage our absentee sisters to do the same!

IT could have been that so many girls were teaching, bringing little ones into the world, or were just so far away, or it may have been our old spirit of making everything coincide with '57; at any rate we had our first reunion with 57 girls pre-registered. There were several who came by for the luncheon, so the grand total was somewhere in the sixties. The spirit was right, and the fun was good, and the girls came from as far north as New York, and (more all night trips) as far south as Atlanta, Georgia. Peggy (Welch) Lambeth gave forth the first big welcome as she played hostess for us during registration.

The morning session found the Alumnae Association passing the bucket to the Class of 57, as we were presented with a bucket (for real!) for our large number of contributors to the Alumnae Fund—84%. The luncheon was a big success as we flanked around our decorations — the class motto on the wall, flowers on the table, souvenirs in our hands—so ably provided by Jean Cauble and her committee of Anna (Buff) Prago, Lib Carnegie, Dottie Crews, and Johnnye (Oglesby) Wyke. After the luncheon came the class meeting, at which time telegrams were read from Lu Stephenson in Italy, Coney Crawford in Washington State, and Mary Nell (Meroney) West in Warwick, Va., the everlastings who were very present in thought. Later in the day came a telegram from Patsy McDaniel and Karen Bryant who sent best wishes from "Beantown". Lu sent "miles of warmest thoughts and wishes," Coney misses us and wanted to come and see all the new babies, and Mary Nell said she was busy tending to some very important business-"bringing into the world a potential graduate of U. N. C." Chancellor and Mrs. Blackwell stopped by to talk with the class during the meeting.

The Alumnae Supper was most significant for the class of '57, as the great applause, the tears that were shed, and the spirit that was shared were the direct result of the most impressive program, written and produced by Claire Hunt, assisted by Neill McLeod, Beryl Peters, Martie Yow, and Alice Spell—our far away girls who came home with just what we needed.

Was it mentioned? No? Well, we all stayed in Cotten, stayed up all night and walked around like zombies the next day, but such fun! And, oh yes, a flag still waves . . . see you in 1964!

What is Woman's College

What is Woman's College to me? A name, a school, the seal you see, A certain word, "Democracy," What is Woman's College to me?

The hall I live in, A plot of earth, a street, Dean Taylor, Chancellor Blackwell, And the people that I meet; The students crossing campus, The faces that I see; All races, all religions . . . That's Woman's College to me.

The place I study,
The classmate at my side,
The classroom or the ballroom
Where my friends have laughed and cried;
The "howdy" and the handshake,
The air of feeling free;
The right to speak my mind out . . .
That's Woman's College to me.

The things I see about me, The big things and the small, The "Yum-Yum" on the corner And our spacious Elliott Hall; The gym class and exam time, Phones ringing in our ears; The dream that's been a-growin' For sixty-seven long years.

The rush to breakfast,
The eight-ten bell too soon;
The streetlights in a rainstorm,
Or the Soda Shop at noon,
The mobiles and the abstracts,
The million tasks I see,
But especially the people . . .
That's Woman's College to me.

The room I live in,
The folks across the track,
The people who just came here
And from generations back;
The men who bring the laundry,
The others that I see,
The men who build this college . . .
That's Woman's College to me.

The TV tower,
The statue of Charles D.,
A maze of one-way streets,
A faculty-student tea;
Peabody Park in springtime,
An empty coke machine;
A weekend midnight curfew . . .
That's what Woman's College means.

The words of Charles McIver Of Elliott and Shaw Miss Grogan in house meeting Speaks of Democratic Law; The choir sings in Aycock, There's a holiday at hand, We evacuate the campus In one exultant band.

Raincoats on Tuesday,
Bermudas on back streets:
With this school of health and beauty
No others can compete;
Our source of education,
A school of fancy free,
And a promise for tomorrow
That's Woman's College to me.
